Lost on the Moon

"We're lost! Lost on the moon!"

So cried Bert Ramsey as the rocket he and his friends had built crash-landed on the desolate surface of the moon.

But Bert, Frank, and Tom are not ordinary boys. They are members of the Space Explorers Club, and they are determined to make the best of their predicament.

With their ingenuity and courage, they build a shelter, find food and water, and even make friends with some of the strange creatures that inhabit the moon.

Lost on the Moon is an exciting and imaginative adventure that will appeal to readers of all ages. It is a story about friendship, courage, and the indomitable spirit of exploration.

Excerpt

The rocket ship hurtled through space, its engines roaring. Inside, Bert, Frank, and Tom gripped the controls tightly.

"We're almost there!" exclaimed Bert.

"I can't wait to see the moon!" said Frank.

"Me too," added Tom.

Suddenly, the ship lurched violently. Bert, Frank, and Tom were thrown from their seats.

"What's happening?" cried Bert.

"I don't know," said Frank.

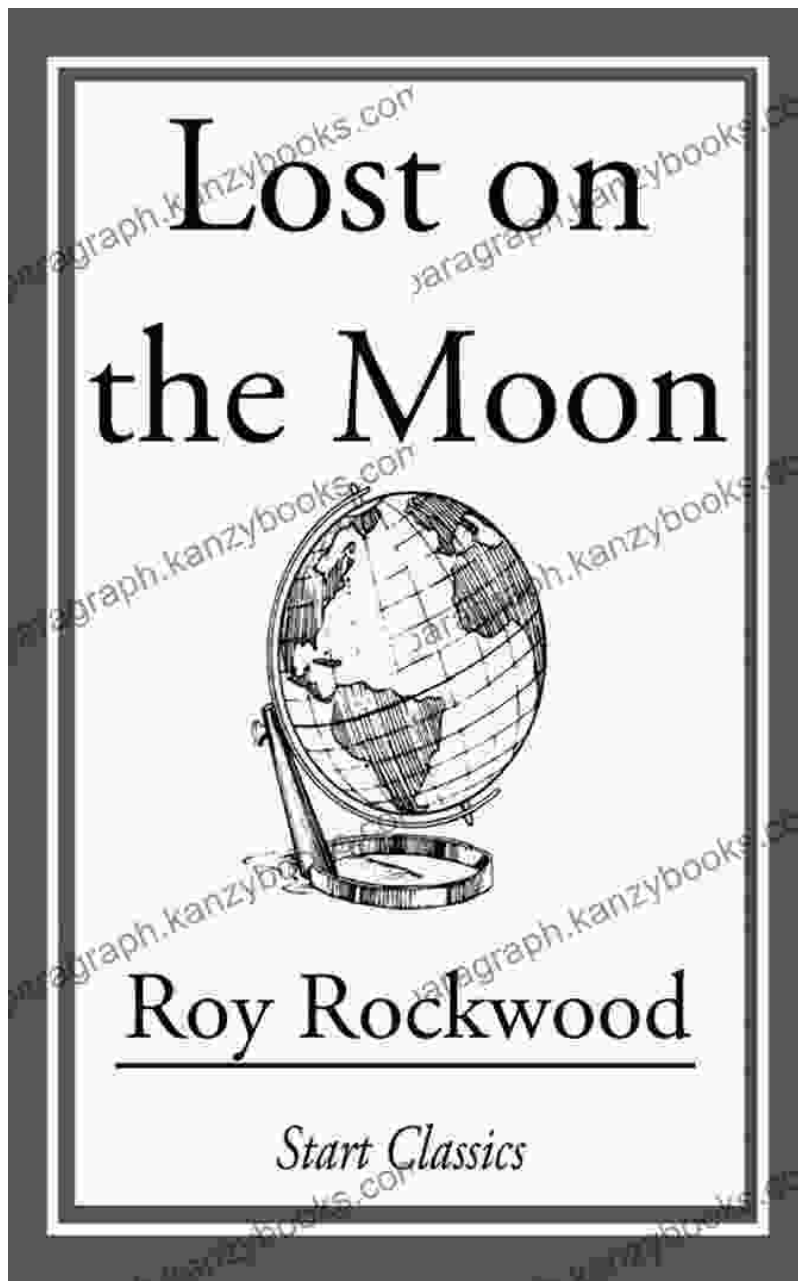

"The ship's out of control!" shouted Tom.

The rocket ship spun out of control, heading straight for the moon.

"Brace yourselves!" yelled Bert.

The rocket ship crashed into the moon with a deafening thud.
